Principles of Good Design: Visual Economy - Fine Art Studio

Art experts enjoy claiming that markets for fine art have no logic. So for example in 1978 Robert Hughes, of Time magazine, declared that "The price of a work of art is an index of pure, irrational desire." Similarly, in 2006 Sotheby's chief auctioneer, Tobias Meyer, claimed that the market's valuation of art could only be described as "magical."

The Importance of the Arts in Economic Development ...

The arts and culture sector is often looked at through a very narrow lens. Theatre productions, museum exhibitions, and symphony orchestras typically comprise the average person's concept of the arts. What's more, the arts are often viewed as isolated instead of being seen as part of a larger economic ecosystem. But key decision-makers and leaders understand that the arts can be an ...
